

KECK CENTER FOR INTERNATIONAL AND STRATEGIC STUDIES

CLAREMONT MCKENNA COLLEGE

Attention Graduating Seniors & Recent CMC Grads!

The Keck Center for International and Strategic Studies is now accepting applications for a new graduate scholarship in IR studies

Program details:

The Keck Center is offering to CMC seniors and graduates with an IR major (with a full, dual or double major in IR) the opportunity to apply for a fellowship to partially support graduate school tuition to study international affairs in the next academic year. The fellowship is intended to partially support a student with limited funding for a Masters or Ph.D. program in international politics, broadly understood. The fellowship will normally be paid directly to the institution where the CMC graduate is matriculating and must be used during the AY 2022-2023 in an accredited and Keck-approved program. CMC seniors/graduates may apply to programs in U.S. or foreign universities. Students who have graduated from CMC since 2020 are eligible to apply. Applicants awaiting decisions from graduate programs, but have not yet been admitted, can still apply. The award amount will be finalized in June, once students have provided an up-to-date report on financial aid and fellowship support from all sources.

To apply, submit the following:

- Cover letter identifying the graduate program(s) to which you are applying and your reason for pursuing graduate study
- Resumé
- Transcript
- Two letters of recommendation

Application deadline: Rolling basis, no later than February 1, 2023

Questions? Please Email the KeckCenter@cmc.edu to learn more about this opportunity.